Owings-Dewey Fine Art Presents An Exhibition of Recent Sculpture by Peter Woytuk

Who: An exhibition featuring recent work by animal sculptor, Peter Woytuk

What: An exhibition of whimsical and dynamic sculpture by Peter Woytuk
Highlighted in this exhibition will be several sculptural compositions of ravens playfully interacting with such objects as apples, acorns, wheel barrels, rocks and crushed tin cans. Cast in bronze, these sculptures will be available in a variety of sizes - ranging from table top maquettes to monumental installations.
Peter has sculpted ravens for years and has managed to demonstrate remarkable liveliness in these works. "I've done some research on them. They spend a good 90 percent of their lives playing because they're so adept at survival," he says. These new works play off the inquisitive, mischievous nature of these legendary birds and provide a unique insight into their lives.
Other subjects to be featured will include sheep, mountain lions, road runners, fish and life-size elephants. A color catalogue and photos will be available upon request.

When: Friday, July 28, 2000
5:00-7:00 PM, Opening Reception
Exhibition will continue through Thursday, August 31, 2000

Where: Owings-Dewey Fine Art Sculpture Gallery
Downstairs at 74 East San Francisco Street
